

New draft rules for foreign employment income tax exemption

By Graeme Palmer

24 Jun 2016

SARS recently issued a new draft Interpretation Note 16 on the requirements to qualify for the exemption in section 10(1)(o)(ii) of the Income Tax Act, 1962, which is the provision which exempts foreign employment income from normal tax. Interpretation Notes provide a useful guideline on how SARS may interpret tax provisions but are not binding on SARS or taxpayers.

© Andriy Popov – 123RF.com

In order to qualify for the exemption, services must be rendered outside of the Republic. When providing the services there must be an employment relationship but the employer does not necessarily have to be a South African resident. As the exemption only applies to employees, independent contractors or self-employed persons do not qualify.

Not all remuneration qualifies. The remuneration that qualifies is remuneration received by or accrued to an employee by way of salary, leave pay, wage, overtime pay, bonus, gratuity, commission, fee, emolument or allowance for services rendered. Remuneration must be received for services rendered. Amounts paid by an employer to an employee, which do not relate to services rendered, for example payment for the termination of employment, are not included.

In order to qualify for the exemption, a person must be in employment outside the Republic for at least 183 full days during any 12-month period. The 183 full days do not have to be consecutive or continuous in order to meet the requirements. When calculating the number of days, this means calendar days and not only work days. Days spent outside of South Africa where a person is not in employment would not qualify.

In addition to the 183 days in aggregate, a person must also have rendered services out of South Africa for a continuous period exceeding 60 full days in the same period of 12 months. The 12 consecutive months does not necessarily mean a year of assessment, a financial year or a calendar year, it can be any period of 12 consecutive months. Taxpayers must be in a position to substantiate their time outside South Africa by providing documentation such as letters of secondment, employment contracts and copies of passports.

There is a common misconception that all remuneration received or accrued during the qualifying period of 12 months is exempt. This is incorrect. Only the remuneration received or accrued in respect of services rendered outside of the Republic during the qualifying period of 12 months is exempt.

ABOUT GRAEME PALMER

Graeme Palmer is a director in the commercial department of Garlick & Bousfield.

- Selling shares at a discount for B-BBEE benefits is not a donation - 21 May 2024
- Unblocking a blocking order - 30 Oct 2023
- Tax assessment appeal: Can it be amended? - 31 Jul 2023
- Repair vs improvement: Why it matters to Sars - 18 Jul 2023
- What are taxpayers' rights to a refund from Sars? - 13 Jun 2023

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>